

THE Carolina

South- GAZETTE.

May 4th, 1752.

[NUMB. 936.]

L O N D O N, February 1.

A MARTIAL, active, and well disciplin'd Militia is the natural, indeed the only effectual defence of an Island; because it may be render'd, at an easy expence, numerous enough to resist any Invaders; may be raised whenever, and wherever Occasion requires; and can never be tempted to Desertion. These Reasons, it is hoped, will not lose their Weight. — By being self evident to every understanding.

The present situation of Things, with regard to the numerous Poor in this Kingdom, seems to put the Herring Fishery into our hands beyond the possibility of escaping us. For it is said, this Trade furnishes employment for all Sexes and Ages, for the Old and Infirm, as well as the Young and Able, therefore our Poor may be generally used therein. They are wholly maintained by the Public at present, and if in part maintained while so employed, we must certainly, and in no very long time, beat out every other Nation in this Fishery, and have no Beggars here any more than in Holland.

A bill is ordered into parliament to make the militia in that part of Great-Britain, called England, more useful.

Extract of a Letter from Gosport, Jan. 28.

It is strongly reported, that the Lords of the admiralty are shortly expected here to make a survey of the dock-yard, guard ships, and ships in ordinary.

London, Feb. 4. We hear that the scheme for employing felons convicted for crimes meriting transportation is now drawing up, in order to be enacted in the bill now depending in parliament, for changing the punishment of such convicts.

Feb. 6. We hear that two men of war and a sloop failed some time ago from Plymouth, for Annamaboo, on the coast of Africa, to prevent the French fleet (where it is said to be gone) from building a fort there: And we are also assured, that the French have given our court a categorical answer, that they will not evacuate St. Lucia, and the rest of the Neutral Islands in the West-Indies.

On Tuesday night last died, at his house in Park Place, Sir John Hinde Cotton, Bart. He was a commissioner of trade and plantations, in the reign of queen Anne; also, a member in several parliaments in that reign for the town of Cambridge; and in the last parliament of his late majesty, was one of the knights of the shire for the county of Cambridge; and in the two first parliaments call'd by his present majesty, serv'd again for the town of Cambridge; in the last and present parliaments for Marlborough; he was, also, treasurer of the chamber to his majesty in 1742.

They write from Brest, that in a few days they should launch several new men of war; and assure us, that they are immediately to be equip'd: That they have just put two ships of the line, and three frigates, on the stocks; and that they are going to form three new Basons in that harbour.

We hear that there is a scheme on foot for reducing the price of post-chaises to six pence per mile.

It is said, the parliament will rise the beginning of April; and that his grace the duke of Newcastle will attend his majesty to Hanover.

We hear that Monday in Easter week is fixed for his majesty's departure for his German Dominions.

The herring fishery society have eleven new buxies on the stocks, which, with the nine they have at present, will make twenty. These, with about ten buxies more, which 'tis said, the Chambers are to have, will form a fleet of thirty British buxies, fishing off Shetland and Yarmouth this year. 'Tis hoped their number will be doubled the next; and the reproach thereby taken off from our country, viz. that we heedlessly permit our numberless poor to starve, when we have the happiest opportunity, which could possibly offer itself, to employ them: That like thoughtless young prodigals we not only neglect to stoop for riches which lie at our doors, but even suffer our rivals to run away with them: And that we are so amazingly indolent, as to neglect the strengthening our own navy, at a juncture when some of our neighbours are using all their industry, and exerting their utmost endeavours, to make theirs invincible.

His majesty has been pleased to appoint lieutenant general Blaud, to be governor of Edinburgh castle, in the room of lord Mark Kerr, deceased; and lieutenant colonel Leighton to be governor of Fort William, in the room of lieutenant general Blaud.

Feb. 11. We learn from the Southern parts of France, that the people are in extreme want of bread; in some places insurrections were apprehended; and that at Toulon they have orders to put all the ships to sea that are now upon the stocks, as soon as they are finished, the necessary directions having been issued to furnish them with sailers.

Letters from the Hague bring an account, that on the 17th instant passed by there an English messenger, with dispatches of very great importance, to the earl of Rochford, at the court of Turin.

We are assured that a proposal is on foot for altering the punishment for murder, from hanging to breaking on a wheel.

It is said, that there are not less than forty prisoners under confinement in the several goals in this kingdom, for the horrid crime of murder only.

A bill is ordered into parliament to prevent the horrid crime of murder.

Feb. 13. As the fertile brains of our Smarts are continually teeming with some new Schemes, equally honourable to themselves and their Country, we hear, that as soon as the fable Season is expired, a choice party of the Bucks intend to constitute a new Fraternity, under the name of SUBSIDARIES, who are to appear, as long as Weather permits, in Saxon Green Frocks, and in Dresden Linnen, by way of Distinction.

We hear that the scheme for regulating and making the militia more useful, is founded upon the old laws; in which every gentleman of five hundred pounds a year serves on horseback, personally, or sends a substitute: Every person of fifty pounds a year, goes himself, or finds a deputy. By which the militia will be in the hands of the people of property. — And it is reported, a great many young gentlemen of quality, and honour, are desirous of appearing finely arm'd and mounted, and to serve therein personally, and not by substitutes.

Feb. 15. On Thursday last was held a general court of the British herring fishery society, at Mercers Hall. The court was vastly numerous, and there were many persons of quality and figure; particularly the earl of Shaftsbury, the bishop of Worcester, lord Romney, Sir James Lowther, Sir Peter Warren, Admiral Vernon, and Mr. Beckford.

The principal speeches (for this national undertaking) were made by Sir James Lowther, Mr. Alderman Janssen, and Mr. Beckford; who all expatiated, with great force, on its mercantile advantages. Then Admiral Vernon, and Sir Peter Warren, enlarged on the strength which the encouragement of it would give to the British navy. And the bishop (considering this scheme in a charitable view) set forth, with great eloquence, the numberless benefits which would accrue from it to the whole kingdom; as this undertaking might furnish employment to a multitude of our poor.

His majesty has been pleased to appoint Charles Knowles, Esq; member for Gatton in Surry, to be governor of Jamaica, in the room of his excellency Edward Trelawney, Esq; who is shortly expected home.

A scheme which has lately been proposed to the consideration of the public, for breaking on the wheel all murderers, has been warmly received and agitated amongst many persons of distinction, who form part of the legislature; and we hear that a clause will be added to it, which will prove very essential towards its producing a good effect, and that is, that all the little felons, who, when a criminal is to suffer, are confin'd in neighbouring goals, should be brought out under a strong guard, to witness the execution, that by seeing the tortures of the delinquent, they may be terrified into obedience of the law: for those criminals are not sufficiently de-
